

3 TO BE WON

Introduce your little Kiwi to New Zealand's native birds with a soft, cute and oh-so-eco t-shirt from Earthlings. Made with 100 percent organic, fair trade cotton, eco-friendly dyes and certified by the Global Organic Textile Standard, these sweet tees are produced without using toxic chemicals, formaldehyde, solvents or dyes. $33, with $1 donated to Forest & Bird, www.earthlings.co.nz

We have three Earthlings t-shirts to give away. Go to good.net.nz/ competitions to enter the draw

Robotics has come a long way. This particular robot doesn't actually do anything except look cool, but what do you expect from an old toaster, CDs and a couple of sardine tins? Artist Martin Adlington uses found, recycled and salvaged materials to draw attention to the importance of waste minimisation and recycling. $25 to $150 at Buana Satu, www.martinadlington.webs.com

The Comvita honey empire's expansion into sumptuous skincare just keeps expanding. New additions to its line-up of UMF 20+ manuka honey-based products include this moisture-rich natural body wash. Made with kumarahou, a native New Zealand plant and traditional soap alternative, it's 99.6 percent natural (plus a teeny bit of preservative). $29 from selected pharmacies

The nights are drawing in, and it's getting harder to clamber out of bed in the morning. You could fight the urge to lie in ... but you're a lover, not a fighter, so embrace the chill instead and snuggle into luxurious, organic, hypoallergenic bedding. We love Ecodown's super-soft duck down (above) and the comforting heft of pure New Zealand wool in Princess Organic Duvets (below). Ecodown pillow $40, duvets from $219 at Farmers stores nationwide. Princess Organic Duvets from $199, www.thegreenboutique.co.nz
